Dear Hiring Manager,

The best asset a company can ever have is an effective and productive workforce. Delighted at possibly growing professionally with your company, I am ready and eager to expand my knowledge and skills in the applied position. I am a prime candidate with the ideal mix of skills and past experiences.

As the attached resumé demonstrates, I am currently a writer and actor with years of industry experience working on various television shows, film productions, and publications, expertly utilizing skills in securing quality and world-class output. I am also equipped with a proven track record of delivering superior-quality results for different forms of media, such as films, TV series, theater, and publications. Aside from that, I also possess expertise in events planning, schedule & budget management, and project administration, coupled with a diverse and unique skill set to ensure work excellence and success. I am a staunch team player with outstanding client and talent interaction and communication skills. With my devotion and passion in this field, I can substantially impact operations and realize corporate targets toward overall success.

Please consider notable highlights of my career:

- Leverage expertise in planning, outlining, and producing creative content in various communication channels, both digital and traditional media, enabling audiences to discover their interests and curiosities through storytelling.
- Imbued with event management experience, expert in developing and implementing marketing strategies, managing budgets, schedules, & audio-visual production, and coordinating with staff & crew to ensure successful event execution.
- Recognized professional with top-notch communication skills, able to connect and understand client's needs, providing timely, outstanding solutions that exceed their expectations.

My resume can only go so far as to detail what I can bring to your team. I believe meeting personally in an interview would serve us best, discuss your needs, and demonstrate how I can add immense value through my skills, work ethic, and experience. If you agree that a formal meeting can be of mutual benefit, please get in touch with me at (818) 257 8798 or via e-mail at aprilwahlin@gmail.com. Thank you in advance for your time and consideration!

Sincerely,

APRIL WAHLIN
